Playing a gig is tiring. There's the actual playing on stage—which can get pretty sweaty—but it's the hauling of amps and instruments that inevitably means that a gig night is a late night. So after playing a Salter Cane concert on Friday night, I had a nice long lie-in on Saturday.

When I did finally emerge, I slothfully sat with my iBook, casting a casual eye over the Web via Twitter, Flickr and all my habitual haunts. At five minutes to midday, I glanced at my mobile phone and saw that I had missed a call. In no particular hurry, I listened back to my voice mail.

The message was from Robert Harding, the authorised Apple service provider who was replacing the hard drive in my borked Macbook. The message said

ABOUT THE JERSEY

'Rapha has created the best bike jersey the world has ever seen.' - Bicycling magazine

'The Rapha Sportwool jersey is simply perfect.' - Cycling Plus

The Rapha Sportwool™ Jersey has received numerous plaudits since it was first launched in 2004. The design has now been updated to ensure it remains the finest cycling jersey money can buy.

The design of details such as the 'bite grip' has been improved and the addition of side panels gives the jersey a close racing fit. Sportwool armwarmers have been replaced by a new design, constructed in soft Italian Roubaix fabric, with contrast stripes, tone on tone logos and reflective strips.

NOTE: THE BLACK JERSEY NOW COMES WITH CONTRASTING WHITE ARMWARMERS, THE WHITE JERSEY COMES WITH BLACK ARMWARMERS.

For active road cyclists a good jersey is an indispensable workhorse, performing multiple roles: protecting from the elements, carrying important cargos (from tools and valuables to food), regulating body temperature for maximum performance on the bike.

When designing the Rapha jersey the rider was put at the centre of the process. The result is a jersey that is uniquely fit for purpose. Each material has been chosen because it's the best in the world. Every detail is there for a reason. This is a jersey that will never let you down. For the discerning rider who wants clothing more in keeping with the performance of his high-end machine, the Rapha Jersey is the standard for performance roadwear.
